Arts in Basic Curriculum School Certification Guidelines

ARTS IN BASIC CURRICULUM INSTITUTE

Mission. The ABC Institute provides leadership to achieve quality, comprehensive arts education for all students in South Carolina.

Vision. The ABC Institute supports educators and communities that actively invest in arts education as a vital contribution to student development and cultural transformation within a learning environment.

- We believe all students deserve equal access to quality, comprehensive, standards-based arts education, which is essential to the educational promise and social well-being of South Carolina’s children.
- We believe the arts are a powerful teaching and learning tool that contributes to the development of every student.

The ABC Institute achieves its mission through three interdependent goals of influence:

- identify, promote, increase, and support best practices in arts education and arts in education,
- conduct, publish and advance research on the influence and impact of arts in education,
- inform advocacy efforts to ensure education policies that provide and protect equitable access to quality, comprehensive arts education for all SC students.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Resolution to Participate

The arts are core to the human experience and necessary for human development, therefore, should be an integral component to the education of all students. Schools who choose to participate in the Arts in Basic Curriculum (ABC) Certification process understand the significance of the arts, not in competition with other subjects, interests, or technological advances but in concert with them.

ABC Schools share the belief that all students deserve equitable access to a quality, comprehensive, and standards-based arts education, which is essential to the educational promise and social well-being of South Carolina’s children. Based on research, and in alignment with the Profile of the South Carolina Graduate, we believe that education in the arts provides students with:

World-class Knowledge

- Standards-based arts education sets achievable, measurable goals that build foundational knowledge and skills in preparation for future college and career opportunities.
- The arts enable learners to be creative in their approach to problem solving and to visualize concepts in new ways.

World-class Skills

- The arts teach a diverse and transferable set of learning skills.
- Artistic processes develop critical thinking and problem-solving skills as learners create, refine, and reflect on their work and the work of others.
- Through collaborative arts experiences, learners acquire skills necessary to communicate effectively as a team.

Life and Career Characteristics

- Learning history and culture in and through the arts broadens global perspectives.
- Quality arts experiences require learners to persevere through experimentation, repetition, and mastery of their arts discipline.
- The arts require learners to be disciplined, dedicated, and demonstrate a strong work ethic.

Arts in Basic Curriculum

The History of the ABC Model Site

“The Arts in Basic Curriculum (ABC) Project was initiated in 1987 with a statewide plan designed to inform educators, government leaders, artists, and the general public about the importance of arts education.” (Graybeal, 1995) The ABC plan was designed with the premise that the arts are an indispensable part of a complete education and arts education complements learning in other disciplines, thus promoting arts integration as a transformative teaching approach. As part of the plan, the ABC Model Sites program (Doughty, 2007) funded schools and districts to serve as laboratories for development of unique approaches to art education and arts integration and were charged with the responsibility to develop and implement art curricula that could be taught by qualified arts teachers and reinforced by other subject area teachers, professional artists, arts organizations, and community resources. (Graybeal, 1995)

Reflection of Historical Findings

An evaluation of the initial model sites program produced many findings but one of the most important was the significance of strategic planning (Graybeal, 1995). It was important to engage and communicate with a broad group of stakeholders in the planning process in order to make significant advances to arts education programs and influence school climate. A ten-year evaluation of ABC Sites reported that ABC Schools with the strongest arts programs shared internal and external characteristics (Seaman, 1999). Those characteristics were:

Internal

- Support of school administration
- Adequate funding levels
- Additional funding through grants
- Teachers who were involved in their profession and were familiar with state and national initiatives in the arts

External

- Parental support
- District support
- Support of community arts organizations

The 20-year evaluation (Arts in Basic Curriculum Project, 2009) further clarified, sites with widespread engagement had higher levels of support for arts education programs and were more likely to sustain progress if plans were regularly reviewed and updated.

A New Definition of an ABC School

During the 2019-20 academic year, ABC Institute underwent a restructuring process. This process was informed by widespread engagement and input from arts advocates, arts educators, administrators, and leaders in the arts at the state, regional, and national levels. As a result of the process, it was determined the ABC Advancement Grant offered by South Carolina Arts Commission (SCAC) would remain a reserved grant for ABC Schools. Moving forward, however, the designation of an ABC School would be a certification status with its own application and review process.

Due to the separation of grant award and ABC Certified School status, determining the process and requirements for certification became the responsibility of the ABC Institute. An ABC Certification Task Force, composed of active practitioners from within the current ABC Network, representing all arts disciplines, various leadership levels, and every geographic region in SC, was formed in spring 2020 to advise ABC Institute leadership staff. The following guidelines and application are a result of the collective consensus and recommendations from ABC Certification Task Force.

CERTIFICATION STATUS

Philosophical Framework of ABC Schools

For over 30 years, ABC Institute has guided schools across SC that have committed funds, time, and resources in order to provide students access to a quality arts education. ABC Schools have grown beyond the foundational step of access to arts education; they clearly understand the role and power of the arts in education and their beneficial contributions to student development. ABC Schools embrace teaching and learning through the arts for the transformative influence on and in the school community.

Regardless of specific actions or efforts, or how each ABC School achieves their unique vision, schools that have sustained their vision as an ABC School share certain philosophical commitments:

An ABC School believes the Arts are an essential component in the Basic Curriculum and are central to student development achieved through making connections, inspiring creativity, and defining culture.

These shared commitments are hereby referred to as the “Framework.”

Student Development

The phrase student development is intentionally broad in order to encompass all aspects of the whole child. It is expected that ABC Schools address any number of pedagogical student development theories and research, such as (but not limited to) cognitive, creativity, emotional, language, physical, and social.

Connecting the Framework to a School’s Vision

Each school determines its unique vision for arts in education and how the arts contribute to student development as a part of the school’s mission. The resources, training, and financial commitments required to achieve that vision are outlined in the arts education strategic plan. While an arts education strategic plan outlines specific goals, objectives, and actions, it is limited and often does not contain all intentional efforts, especially ones that reflect the intangible assets upon the whole school learning environment.

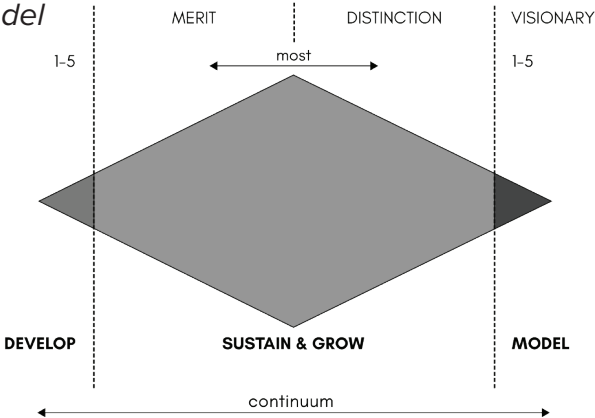

The Framework creates a bridge to communicate the relationship between all efforts, both stated in a strategic plan as well as the intangible assets as a result of those efforts, to the school’s vision as an ABC School.

Certification and the Continuum Model

Just as each student has a unique learning path, skills, and strengths, so too does each ABC School. There are innumerable factors that influence a school’s commitment and growth trajectory (state regulations, district capacity, families and students served, personnel and faculty, regional resources, and more), most of which are ever-changing and beyond the control of the individual leadership.

To honor the exceptional work required to develop, sustain, and grow the commitments of being an ABC School, the ABC School Continuum Model (see Figure 1) serves as a testament to the persistent mindfulness required to become and remain an ABC School. Schools are in constant flux, thus the attention given to an ABC School’s vision and strategic plan must be continuously examined and refined. It cannot be assumed that success achieved within one set of factors will remain successful as those factors change. Thus, ABC School certification is a three-year designation and schools must reapply to maintain certification. Continuum designation may change to reflect the changes of influential factors.

Of note, “In Development” are schools who may not have the depth and complexity of commitments required for certification. Most schools seeking ABC Certification typically require 6-18 months to secure the necessary commitments. The goal of the ABC Certification Application process is to provide reflective feedback to every school, including those “In Development”. This means that a school may leverage the ABC Certification Application process as a professional learning opportunity in preparation for future applications.

Application of the Framework in Context of the Continuum Model

The Framework was intentionally designed upon philosophical commitments in order to maintain the historical flexibility extended to ABC Schools and be applicable within the ABC Continuum Model. Therefore, how a school engages with the Framework may change in relationship to the school’s trajectory on the continuum model.

Connecting the Framework to a School’s Strategic Actions

It is the responsibility of the applicant school to determine how the sum of all efforts support the philosophical commitments that define an ABC School. As mentioned, those efforts can be the specific objectives and actions within a strategic plan. However, the intentional efforts to the whole school learning environment not listed within the strategic plan may be included as well.

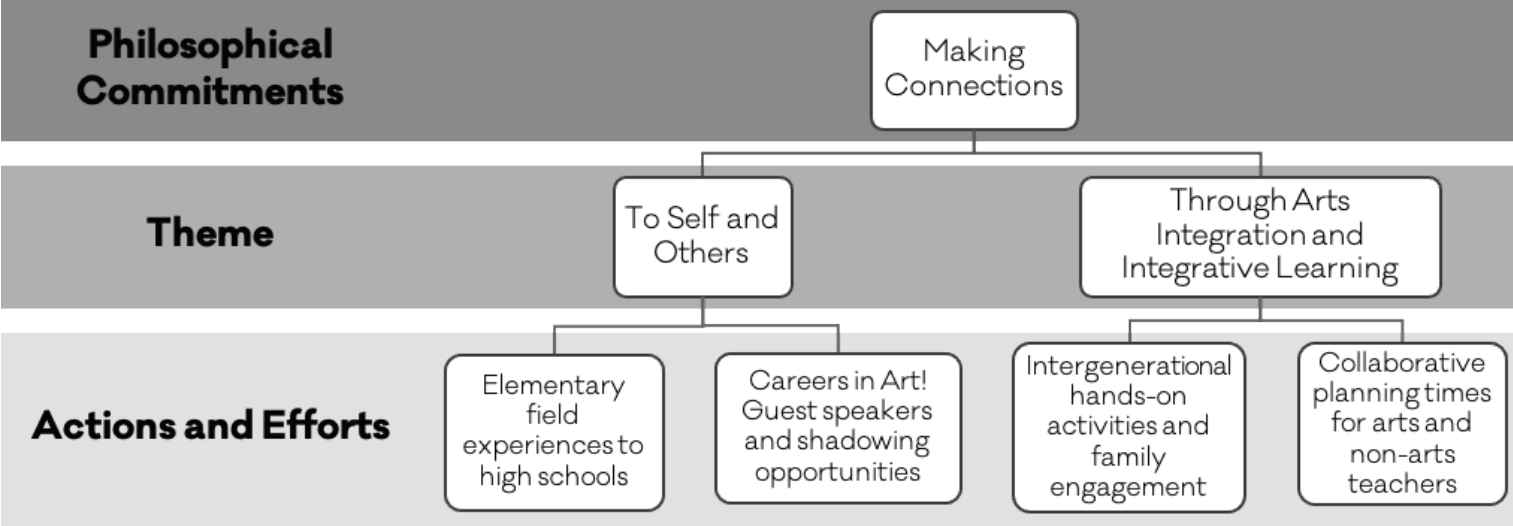

Schools may choose to sort all specific actions and efforts according to the philosophical commitments, as is illustrated in Table 1.

Table 1 - Sample ABC School Philosophical Alignment by Specific Actions and Efforts

ABC School Philosophical Commitment Framework
We, as an ABC School, believe the Arts are an essential component to the Basic Curriculum and are central to student development achieved through
Making Connections	Inspiring Creativity	Defining Culture
Elementary field experiences to high schools.	Creative use of student art work as fundraisers.	Schoolwide performances include every student (SPED, ELL).
Careers in Art! Guest speakers and shadowing opportunities.	Creative use of arts staff as artist-in-residence within a school and from school to school. Greater exposure for students.	Evidence of professional equity between academics and arts is apparent in planning time, duty responsibilities, space, number of students per class.
Networking and collaborating with fellow art schools, instructors, administrator, etc.	Use of common areas and times to showcase students, ex: gallery in school lobby, string quartet in courtyard during common time, etc.	Curriculum content reflects the diverse arts and cultural traditions of student population.
Collaborate with community partners.	Student designed school letterhead, greeting cards, and any other school “products” used.	Attendance at performances & festivals are available to all families (not cost prohibitive).
Intergenerational hands-on activities and family engagement.	Creative environment, such as flexible room designs and authentic assessments.	Arts awards as well as academic ones are presented at appropriate school events.

An ABC School further along its growth continuum, with sustained support and increased capacity, may further examine all actions for common traits and determine emergent themes such as Figure 2 illustrates.

A thematic approach to the Framework is a strategy to organize the numerous actions. Themes provide clarity to the complex and various purposes contained within a singular philosophical idea. Table 2 provides an example Framework based on themes rather than all individual actions demonstrated.

Table 2 - Sample ABC School Philosophical Alignment by Theme

ABC School Philosophical Commitment Framework
We, as an ABC School, believe the Arts are an essential component to the Basic Curriculum and are central to student development achieved through

Note: This is just one example of how a school might organize the commitments to achieve their vision by themes.

BENEFITS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Access to ABC Advancement Grants

Since 1988, the SCAC has offered the ABC Advancement Grant, intended to financially support schools and districts that have courageously prioritized arts education as a means to student development. Beginning fiscal year 2021, the ABC Advancement Grant became a reserved grant fund, available only to ABC Certified Schools. Thus, creating two distinct processes.

First, a school must successfully demonstrate the priority to arts education as a means to student development through its philosophical commitments and be designated an ABC Certified School. As an ABC Certified School, the school is eligible to receive ABC Advancement Grant funds for the next three fiscal years, or the effective duration of certification. In order to remain eligible to receive ABC Advancement Grant funds, a school must maintain ABC Certified School status which requires a reapplication for certification every three years.

Although the eligibility process has changed, the intention of the grant remains the same. ABC Advancement

Grants provide financial support, that may otherwise be unavailable, to supplement the expenses required to achieve the highest quality and comprehensive arts education practices. Individual ABC schools maintain the responsibility to request funds from the SCAC on a yearly basis and fulfill all terms and conditions of a grant recipient as determined by SCAC.

Support Services by ABC Institute

ABC Institute is a resource-oriented partnership, charged with providing leadership to achieve a quality, comprehensive arts education for all students in SC. As such, the partnership convenes and engages with numerous groups around issues of education, arts education, and arts in education at both the state and national level. Consequently, the ABC staff provides unique support services to ABC Certified Schools which have included but are not limited to:

- providing academic and intellectual resources, such as books, white papers, etc.
- informing practitioners on state and national resources
- representing arts education communities in educational policy arenas
- facilitating professional learning opportunities
- coaching on leadership, advocacy, and collaborative strategic planning
- providing individual assistance and guidance to schools.

ABC Schools are Model Schools

Among the Profession

ABC Schools serve as models for others to learn from, both in-state and across the country. Commitment to the arts is strategic in nature and often against popular trends, meaning it requires courageous and creative leadership. Accepting ABC Certification is accepting the responsibility of a professional learning community and agreeing to provide professional learning opportunities to others. This may be accomplished in various ways:

- allowing teachers, administration, policymakers, and other interested parties to schedule school visits
- allowing members of your school's team to provide professional development to other schools
- contributing to state and national conferences and sharing best practices as an ABC School

To the Public

As a model, your school will be celebrated in as many public arenas as possible. For example, a recognition ceremony celebrating ABC Certified Schools will be held every spring. Also, the ABC Institute and the SCAC periodically send press releases and feature ABC Schools on social media stories.

In turn, being an ABC Certified School should be a source of pride. It is an accomplishment which the school should mindfully celebrate in as many ways as possible, such as a website banner, on printed programs, announcements at parent/family events, etc. Furthermore, ABC Certified Schools should consider themselves an advocate partner, providing models that transform the words and ideals of our shared beliefs into reality.

A Resource to the ABC Network

Within pre-K - 12

The ABC Network is a community defined by the unifying vision that all students in SC deserve quality, comprehensive arts education as part of the basic curriculum. For ABC Certified Schools, the ABC Network is both a benefit and responsibility. It is beneficial because of the potential to share resources, professional learning opportunities, and mentorship support. It is a responsibility because the ABC Network includes other organizations, teaching artists, and art educators who may need guidance and can learn from the wisdom and experiences of an ABC School.

In Connection to pre-K - 12

ABC Schools agree to serve to advance the study and promotion of arts in education. The ABC Network is a vast community that includes organizations and institutions that inform, influence, and innovate best practices. The ABC Institute often initiates and is approached for partnership opportunities to explore and promote practices of the ABC Network. These partnership opportunities vary from research studies (U of SC's Research, Evaluation and Measurement Center) to shared resources (SCETV KnowItAll) and can range from brief, one-time encounters to on-going relationships. Opportunities for state partnerships, projects, and research are always emerging; therefore, ABC Schools agree to participate in at least one state partnership program every certification cycle.

ABC SCHOOL CERTIFICATION

The Application Process

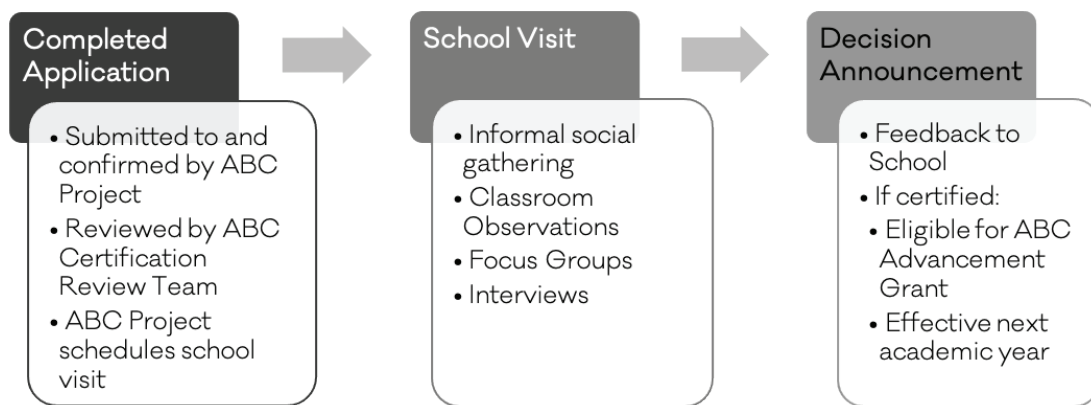

Initial Certification

Any school that intends to apply for certification for the first time should contact the ABC Institute. Typically, schools require 6 to 18 months to secure the strategic commitments required in preparation to apply for certification.

The overall ABC Certification Process can be seen in Figure 3. More specifically, the steps and general dates for initial certification are as follows:

1. Applications are accepted between August 1 and October 1 each year.
 - a. Applications are for the following three academic years. In short, an application is required one year prior to effective certification.
2. The review process is conducted between October 15 and December
3. Decisions are announced by December 15.
4. Certified ABC Schools are eligible to apply for SCAC ABC Advancement Grants before May 15 each year.
 - a. ABC Advancement Grants are yearly grants. In order to continue to receive funding, an ABC School must complete the ABC Advancement Grant application each year.
5. A recognition ceremony will be conducted to honor ABC Certified Schools in the spring. Additional promotion occurs throughout the year.
6. Certification is effective for the following three academic years.

Renewal Certification

ABC School certification is effective for three academic years. Any school that intends to maintain certification must reapply. The ABC Certification Process remains the same (See Figure 3), however, the general dates for renewal certification are as follows:

1. Applications are accepted between August 1 and December 15.
 - a. Applications are for the following three academic years.
2. The review process is conducted between January 15 and March 15.
3. Decisions are announced by March 31.
4. Certified ABC Schools are eligible to apply for SCAC ABC Advancement Grants before May 15 each year.
 - a. ABC Advancement Grants are yearly grants. In order to continue to receive funding, an ABC School must complete the ABC Advancement Grant application each year.
5. A recognition ceremony will be conducted to honor ABC Certified Schools in the spring. Additional promotion occurs throughout the year.
6. Certification is effective for the following three academic years.

The Application

The application requires the following:

1. An updated, five-year arts education strategic plan that includes effective certification years
2. A school profile description
3. Statements of support

4. A list of members from the governing ABC stakeholder group.
5. A collection of evidence showing adherence to ABC Philosophical Framework
 - a. Evidence Checklist with self-assessment notes.

Although an application will contain the same basic five requirements, the contents should be unique to each applicant school. This is because each school determines the appropriate collection of evidence and data that best communicates its commitment to the arts and certification as an ABC School.

The Application Review

The ABC Institute is responsible for overseeing the application and application review process. This includes, but is not limited to

- the collection and management of school certification applications
- the selection and training of ABC Certification Review Team members
- the assignment of ABC Certification Review Team members to specific school applicants
- the distribution of application contents to assigned ABC Certification Review Team members
- the coordination of the application review among ABC Certification Review Teams
- the coordination of school visits
- the delivery of ABC Certification Review Team feedback to applicant schools

The ABC Certification Review Team

ABC Certification Review Teams will be composed of ABC Institute leadership staff and retired and current practitioners familiar with the ABC School process and philosophical framework. ABC Certification Review Teams will review applications, observe practices and conduct interviews during school visits, and determine certification designation.

To protect anonymity, autonomy, and unbiased feedback, all aspects of the review process will be communicated through ABC Institute staff. No member of the applicant school may contact any member of the assigned ABC Certification Review Team to discuss the application review process (See Figure 3).

A School Visit

Once applications are submitted, the ABC Institute staff will work with each school's Certification Team to prepare for a school visit. School visits will be arranged between ABC Institute staff and each school's designated Certification Liaison. Any specific requests of the ABC Certification Review Team will be communicated through ABC Institute staff. No member of the applicant school may contact any member of the ABC Certification Review Team to discuss the school visit.

School visits will be scheduled in consideration of each school's requests. Schools will be informed of school visit with as little as one-week notice.

- School Visits will include:
 - o An informal school community gathering after school the day before the official school visit for introductions and basic overview of school visit schedule.
 - o Classroom Observations
 - o Focus Groups and Interviews conducted with different stakeholders
 - Students
 - Parents and Community Stakeholders
 - Teachers
 - School Leadership

The purpose of a school visit is for the ABC Certification Review Team to experience the intangible assets upon a school learning environment influenced by the tangible commitments contained in the application packet.

Certification and the Continuum Model

Each school will be reviewed on the relationship to its own development as an ABC School according to the ABC continuum model (See Figure 1) by the ABC Certification Review Team.

Throughout our rich history, ABC Schools have demonstrated creativity and ingenuity in order to overcome challenges in providing quality, comprehensive arts education to their students. Challenges are often driven by influences beyond a school's control, such as the unique cultural and economic resources within a geographical location. Consequently, most solutions are influenced by those same factors. Due to the innumerable combinations of challenges and solutions, assessing all ABC Schools by one singular measurement standard is disingenuous and arguably inequitable.

Rating and Continuum Designation

Both the tangible evidence submitted in the application and the intangible evidence during the school visit are assessed for authenticity and complexity based on the continuum rubric.

The continuum rubric is an objective guide to both applicant school and the ABC Certification Review Team. Although the rubric provides objective descriptors, the evaluation process will, inevitably, be vulnerable to subjectivity because no two schools are the same. Both the applicant school (in the application) and the ABC Certification Review Team (in the review process) will be tasked to interpret the best descriptor after analyzing the application, actions, and efforts of the school in context to the circumstances and influences beyond the school's control.

ABC Certification Review Team members are carefully selected for their trustworthy wisdom, expertise, and leadership. The self-assessment of the applicant is considered in the review process, yet the decision of the ABC Certification Review Team is final.

Feedback and School Development Continuum

Above all, the ABC Certification process is intended to be a reflective, meaningful experience for the applicant school. The ABC Certification Review Team is responsible to contribute to the applicant's reflective experience through feedback. Each ABC Certification Review Team member will examine and evaluate all evidence presented, first individually and then collectively with the team for designation determination. Throughout the process, there are many opportunities to provide feedback on individual items as well as holistic impressions.

ABC Institute will collect, transcribe and deliver all feedback to the applicant school in written format during a closing consultation. The closing consultation will be conducted by ABC Institute leadership staff with applicant school certification team once the ABC Certification Review Team has concluded the review process and determined certification status.

Certification Renewal

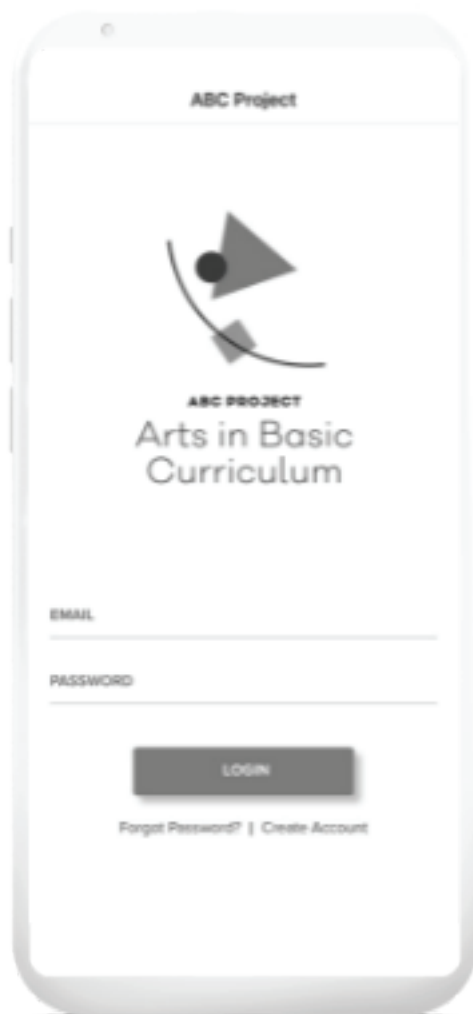

Certification is effective for three years. To maintain certification status, a school will need to apply every three years. The ABC Institute is committed to maintaining a meaningful relationship with ABC Schools during certification years through a variety of communication and support services.

Crashtest Magazine

Crashtest is a biannual online magazine founded and run by the creative writing students at the Fine Arts Center, so that students in high schools all over the country will have a place to publish work that tests limits, asks questions, rejects the easy answers, risks obliteration, believes in failure, is suspicious of scripted success.

Connection to Strategic Plan:

Goal 5: Community Impact

- To continuously make significant connections and contributions that positively impact the local, state, and national arts communities

Connection to SC Graduate:

World Class Knowledge:

- Observation and research of current trends in professional artistic process and product
- Observation and research into the effects of social behavior and cultural influences on the artist and subject matter
- Peer evaluation
- Editing processes

World Class Skills

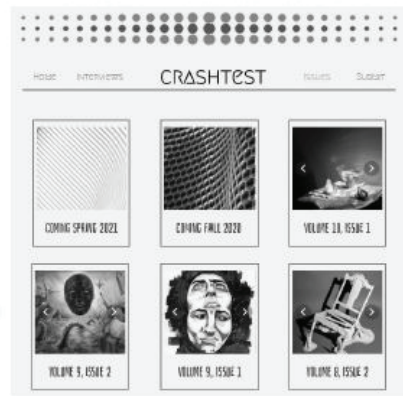

- Collaboration and teamwork
- Knowing how to learn

Life and Career Characteristics

- Self-direction, self-discipline, accountability and meeting of deadlines
- Global perspective on current trends in creative writing, its practice, and its professionals
- Use of technology to research, organize and present work
- Work ethic

"Here at Crashtest we believe being alive right now is what matters. We don't think the ability to observe the world and form an opinion is denied us because we can't yet rent a car. We don't think the experience of being human kicks on at a certain birthday, or that our vested interest in building a life we want to live in a world that can sustain us should be delayed until we have all the right paperwork in place." Senior Theatre Directing Capstones

Witnessing the growth of an individual in their art form is a rewarding experience. PCA Theatre seniors are afforded the opportunity to take on a different role, for many of them. These students get the chance to become directors. They are asked to bring to the stage a one-act production or suitable scenes from a longer work. This project is a large undertaking and always challenges the student. In the end they become inspired. They use their creativity and the skills they have learned over the years to bring a work to life.

Hands Sculpture

Link to Evidence

HMS DC02 Hands Sculpture

Description

We selected a diverse student body to participate. The guest artist, Bob Doster, took the student's hand and drew it out on the steel. Then the artist guided the students in cutting out their hand with the fire torch. The artist will use the steel hand cut outs to erect a 5 ft sculpture in the shape of a Hand to be displayed outside of our school.

Sculpture update: This project will be completed by Spring 2022. 90 additional students will receive the opportunity. The HAND sculpture will be prominently placed on campus.

Theatre Professional Development

The second Goal of our strategic arts plan is to increase teacher capacity through on-going professional development.” The first objective under that goal is to “Provide schoolwide staff development on arts standards and arts infusion.” The highly qualified teachers at AIMS have provided arts experiences/workshops for the staff. These help to build knowledge and serve as an opportunity for staff to build relationships and make connections to other content areas. The responses from our teacher survey will inform future workshops/professional development that is offered to our staff.

Arts Infusion

Photo collage of Arts Infusion materials. Over the last year and a half, the Arts Team has worked with administration and school faculty to increase resources for classroom teachers to use to infuse more of the arts in their rooms. Some of these examples include: a poster of Arts Elements in each classroom, Arts Boxes of supplies that teachers can check out, and a shared Google Drive of arts-integrated lessons and resources.

Gurn Dance

A member of our Drama faculty attended took a course on Anti-Racist Theatre in the summer of 2021, offered by VASTA (Voice and Speech Teachers of America). Sessions were led by the authors of the book Experiencing Speech: A Skills based, Panlingual Approach to Actor Training. In teaching students about each articulator used in speaking, it is crucial that they experience the movements each articulator can perform in isolation. Knight Thompson Speechwork uses the idea of gurning (making a grotesque face) as a fun and experiential way to fully embrace all the movements of the articulators. From there students learned a series of articulator isolations as a daily exercise. They were given the task of choreographing a “gurn dance” which had to be a rehearsed, performable, 1-minute articulator dance fest. The video shows one of these performances.
